

Missouri Market Development Program's

Recycled Products
Directory

INTRODUCTION

This directory was developed to help consumers locate vendors of recycled-content products that are being manufactured and distributed in Missouri. It is also intended to support businesses in Missouri that have invested in technologies that convert materials once disposed of as waste and use them to make value-added products.

Staff from the Environmental Improvement and Energy Resources Authority (EIERA) Missouri Market Development Program compiled the information included in the Missouri Recycled Products Directory. This publication is not an endorsement for any product, its availability, price or quality, but simply a guide to some of the recycled products available for sale in Missouri.

This Directory does not include all recycled products that are offered by your local retailer. There are many more vendors of recycled products in Missouri than those listed here. If you are a recycled product vendor in Missouri and would like to be listed, please complete and return the data sheet in the back of the Directory. There is no charge for this listing.

Why Buy Recycled?

Buying recycled products helps "close the loop," creating a demand for the materials recovered in recycling collection programs. For recycling to work, recyclables collected must be returned to the economic mainstream in the form of products people buy and use. When you buy recycled, you can help recycling create jobs, build more competitive manufacturing industries, add value to Missouri's economy and protect the environment all at the same time.

TARGET & THE ENVIRONMENT

Did you know that nearly 100% of apparel and 95% of all shoes arrive in Target stores with no excess packaging? This keeps millions of pounds of pins, tissue, cardboard inserts and plastic out of the waste stream. 25 million pairs of shoes arrived in boxes containing 80% recycled fiber. Broken hangers (1700 tons) were reground and made into new hangers or other goods.

Target also has a shopping cart recycling program. Two hundred and thirteen stores sent damaged carts, that might have gone to landfills, to be either refurbished or recycled. In 2001, more than 22,000 carts were recycled.

How about this fact, did you know that Target stores toner cartridges are reused and remanufactured? In addition, interior and remodel construction areas of Target recycled almost 260 tons of fixtures. Next time you shop at Target, make sure to check out their recycled products before you buy.

SCHNUCKS & THE ENVIRONMENT

In addition to newspaper collection bins at some area Schnucks, all metro St. Louis Schnucks stores accept plastic grocery bags for recycling. Take recycling one step further, when shopping at Schnucks look for EnviroBag brand trash bags. For more information about this program and its products, visit the EnviroBag website at: www.envirobag.com or call their toll-free number: 800-866-3954.

Along with the EnviroBag trash bags, Schnucks carries other merchandise made from recycled products, just ask an associate! Also check out Schnucks website: www.schnucks.com or E mail at: consumer@schnucks.com

HOW WHAT YOU RECYCLE BECOMES A NEW PRODUCT: PAPER

Paper, in its various forms, represents the largest percentage of what is in our trash. It's also one of the most recycled materials here in the United States and around the world. The average American recycles 329 pounds of corrugated boxes, office paper, newspaper, and other forms of paper.

Over one-third of all paper and paperboard products recovered and recycled worldwide are recovered right here in America. Recovered paper fiber is a valuable resource in the manufacture of new paper and paperboard packaging, building products and other consumer goods.

Old corrugated boxes get converted into the fluted center of a new corrugated box. An old newspaper can be turned into newsprint for today's edition of the paper, or into an egg carton, house insulation or part of your cereal box. Office paper is transformed into a variety of products, including tissue and paper towels. And even junk mail can be recycled into roofing paper or other products.

Like many other recyclables, recycling paper and paperboard products from our homes and businesses is both good for the economy and the environment. In addition to providing a reliable source of fiber that may be closer to paper manufacturing centers than distant forests, paper recycling saves tremendous amounts of energy and generates less water and air pollution.

The above information on paper recycling is from Missouri Recycling Association's Missouri Recycling Guide.

Lawn and Garden

DON'T BAG GRASS CLIPPINGS

The easiest way to start mulching is to take the grass catcher off the lawn mower. To avoid raking the entire lawn, mow from the outer edge in ever-smaller circles toward the center, making sure that the side discharge mower is "walking" or blowing the grass clippings ever closer to the central point. In this manner, clippings are chopped several times and most fall between the blades as mulch. The few that are left near the center can easily be raked and placed into the compost bin or spread in the garden.

GRASS CLIPPINGS DO NOT CAUSE THATCH to build up. Thatch is caused by high-lignin stubble at the plant base derived from roots, rhizomes, crowns, and stolons the decompose slowly. If anything, mulching green grass can actually help decompose thatch by supporting a healthy soil ecosystem. With grass mulching, some lawns may need additional aeration and watering to help soil organisms decompose the clippings properly, especially during dry periods.

The above information on grass clippings is in the Missouri Recycling Association's Missouri Recycling Guide.

HDPE is perhaps the most easily recognized and one of the most recycled plastics. HDPE is used to make bottles and jugs for milk, laundry detergents, soaps, shampoos and many other household products. A developing industry for recovered HDPE is the manufacture of dimensional lumber, which is something to consider when building a new deck. Plastic lumber, while sometimes more expensive than wood, is much more durable and has a longer product life. It is also not subject to rotting, insect damage and splintering.

Lawn and Garden

PLASTIC LUMBER LANDSCAPING TIMBERS AND POSTS

Landscaping timbers and posts are used for raised beds, retaining walls and terracing. Plastic lumber landscaping timbers and posts are used in urban plazas, zoos, and outside office buildings. Timbers and posts manufactured with plastic or composite (plastic mixed with wood or fiberglass) lumber give new life to recovered wood and plastic materials such as milk jugs and plastic bags.

ELECTRONICS RECYCLING: COMPUTING NEW WAYS TO RECYCLE

More than half of American homes have one or more computers. Chances are these same homes have an older computer stashed somewhere in the basement or garage, a victim of the rapid advances in memory, speed and features that make today's model of computer practically outdated before it's booted up.

Fortunately, we have alternatives to sending old computer and peripheral hardware to a landfill. There are companies that will update an existing computer, accept trade-ins, and purchase or accept old computers for refurbishing or recycling. Several major computer companies are also setting up internal programs for accepting back and recycling their own brand of computers. Lastly, what's outdated for your personal use may be perfectly acceptable for someone else's needs. Consider donating your old computer to local schools or charities or selling it at a garage sale.

HOW TO CUT COSTS WHILE BUYING RECYCLED: TIP #1

Buy the right kind of paper: The paper you choose should be the correct paper for the job to avoid waste and eliminate theories that recycled content paper is inferior. (e.g. find out whether it is "laser compatible" if that will be your primary usage). Most equipment manufacturers will recommend paper weights. Before making a large purchase, test a ream on your own machines.

Thank you to the Recycled Paper Coalition for allowing us to use the above information in this Directory. The information was taken from www.papercoalition.org.

HOW TO CUT COSTS WHILE BUYING RECYCLED: TIP #2

Compare prices: Customers buying off the shelf in retail stores often see inexpensive virgin paper products placed prominently near the entrance, and must search for the limited stock of higher-priced recycled paper.

The difference in price between the recycled and virgin papers available off the shelf most likely reflects a difference in paper quality, as the recycled paper is typically a better grade than the cheaper virgin papers stocked; comparing prices on these products is comparing apples to oranges.

HOW TO CUT COSTS WHILE BUYING RECYCLED: TIP #3

Don't presume that recycled costs more: For some grades of paper, such as coated papers, there should be little or no price difference for recycled; the coating is such a high percentage of the cost of paper that the fiber cost is relatively insignificant.

STAPLES & THE ENVIRONMENT

Staples believes in selling recycled, environmentally friendly products. We have a very good track record when it comes to offering recycled products in our stores, catalogs and on Staples.com. We sell 1,000 recycled products in our stores, in our catalogs and on Staples.com. We have 450 products in our stores alone.

logs and on Staples.com. We sell 1,000 recycled products in our stores, in our catalogs and on Staples.com. We have 450 products in our stores alone.

Did you know that Staples has an inkjet cartridge recycling program. There are two ways to recycle your cartridges; one is by dropping your used cartridges in a box located near the new inkjet cartridges. The second is to request an envelope, from a Staples associate, to mail your used Hewlett-Packard cartridges to a third party to be recycled. Staples also sells remanufactured toner for laser printers.

Not only does Staples believe in selling recycled, environmentally friendly products, Staples uses environmentally friendly products. In 1999 the EPA honored us with its Green Lights Retail Partner of the Year Award. We were one of only 14 winners from more than 3,000 participants in the EPA's nationwide Energy Star Buildings and Green Lights programs. We were recognized for a variety of policies, including our use of recycled material in our buildings, our energy-efficient lighting and heat-reflecting roofing systems. In fact, our efforts in our corporate offices over the past year have saved natural resources that would have been consumed during the paper manufacturing and disposal process.

Staples is proud to have recently been accepted as a sponsor for America Recycles Day. We will be part of a nationwide public education and outreach campaign aimed at focusing attention on the importance of recycling and buying recycled-content products.

The Missouri Market Development Program thanks Staples, Inc. for helping to make this directory more valuable to Missouri residents. Information is used with permission from Staples, Inc.

RECYCLING IS NO LONGER A NOVELTY

For Missourians, recycling has become an integral part of our daily activities at home, work and school. Why? Because recycling contributes secondary resources, in the form of paper fiber, metals, glass, plastics and other materials into new products and packaging.

The above information on recycling is in thanks to the Missouri Recycling Association and their publication Missouri Recycling Guide.

WAYS TO RECYCLE YOUR CARDS

There are many ways to recycle your greeting cards:

Turn them into new cards using construction paper. Cut out a picture from your old cards and glue it onto a folded piece of construction paper, write your own lines on the inside of the paper. Now you have a personalized recycled greeting card.

Check out some of the crafts available to you using old greeting cards. There are several websites that will help you:

www.thepartyworks.com/crafts

www.charlottebear.co.uk/art/craft

<http://www.deq.state.la.us/assistance/recycling/home/cardornament.htm>

<http://www.allfreecrafts.com/christmasbox.htm>

The above are just a few websites, there are many more.

Another way to recycle your old greeting cards is to donate them to St. Jude's Children's Ranch for children. To find out more information on this program go to www.stjudesranch.org from there click on "You Can Help"

BUYING RECYCLED PRODUCTS

Missouri is home to a number of important industries that use the commodities we recycle to make new products - from greeting cards to glass bottles to plastic decking. While not all recyclables are made into new products here in Missouri, a great many are, and other commodities are further processed, sorted and densified into upgraded materials that are converted into new products in other parts of the nation. Your community may have a scrap dealer to buy and process metals, paper, and other materials into industrial raw material grades that are shipped to various markets.

We are all consumers of goods and services, and our purchasing choices influences the recycling system. The last component of the recycling process involves purchasing recycled content products and packaging - closing the recycling loop. Without consumer purchases of recycled content products we lose the markets for the materials we collect and reuse. Your decision to choose recycled not only helps the environment but will support recycling businesses as well.

STEEL FOOD, AEROSOL AND PAINT CANS

No matter how you weigh it, steel is the most recycled material in America. Tens of millions of tons of steel are recycled each year in this country. That's a lot of steel scrap that previously was an automobile, a washer or dryer, or that steel food can from your kitchen. In fact steel cans are a popular recycled commodity. The U.S. steel industry remelts nearly 20 billion steel cans - 58 percent of all cans purchased - in the making of new steel products. That's some 600 cans remelted every second of every day in America. The "tin can" used for a variety of food products is actually 99% steel. Only a thin coating of tin is used to prevent rust and to protect the contents of the steel container. That makes the steel can even more recyclable than ever.

So why do steel mills use the steel food cans, aerosol cans, appliances and other scrap steel generated from our homes and industries? Easy. Recycling steel saves energy and reduces environmental emissions over making steel solely from raw materials. It also cuts down on the environmental impacts of mining the raw materials that go into making new steel. The U.S. steel industry saves 74 percent of the energy used when new steel is made from raw materials. Viewed another way, that's 5,400 btus of energy conserved for every pound of steel recycled.

STEEL RECYCLING FACTS

- Some 44 percent of the average new steel can consists of recycled steel.
- The Steel Recycling Institute reports the recycling rate for steel cans at 60 percent, for appliances 77 percent, and for automobiles, an amazing 98 percent.
- The U.S. Steel industry relies on recycled steel scrap, including steel can scrap, as a feedstock in the steel making process. The basic oxygen furnace typically uses about 25 percent recycled steel scrap, while electric arc furnace steel making industry can use up to 100 percent recycled steel scrap.
- Over 18,000 domestic recycling collection programs recycle steel food cans.
- Some 4,700 community recycling programs recycle aerosol cans and 3,900 programs recycle paint cans.
- Steel framing is making an inroad into new home construction. Two percent of new homes built in 1997 used steel framing over wood.
- Scrap steel reduces related water pollution, air pollution and mining waste by about 70 percent.
- It takes four items as much energy to make steel from virgin ore as from steel scrap.

The above information on Steel Recycling is from the Missouri Recycling Association's Missouri Recycling Guide.

ACHIEVING ECONOMIC & ENVIRONMENTAL SUCCESS

The recycling industry in the Midwest is a combination of traditional businesses such as metal scrap yards and paper mills along with innovative enterprises such as plastic lumber manufacturers and consumer electronics "demanufacturers."

The U.S. Recycling Economic Information Study is an unprecedented national study that demonstrates the importance of recycling and reuse to the U.S. economy. The study was commissioned by the U.S. EPA and numerous states through a cooperative agreement with the National Recycling Coalition.

For more information, visit EPA's Jobs Through Recycling website at www.epa.gov/jtr and click on "Recycling is Working".

Why not take advantage of one of the many recycling services listed here and start recycling today!

Every Business Has Information That Requires Destruction

All businesses have occasion to discard confidential data. Customer lists, price lists, sales statistics, drafts of bids and letters, even memos, contain information about business activity, which would interest any competitor. Every business is also entrusted with information that must be kept private. Employees and customers have the legal right to have this data protected.

Without the proper safeguards, information ends up in the dumpster where it is readily and legally available to anybody. The trash is considered by business espionage professionals as the single most available source of competitive and private information from the average business. Any establishment that discards private property data without the benefit of destruction exposes itself to the risk of criminal and civil prosecution, as well as the costly loss of business.

Records That Need Safe Destruction:

Customer Mailing ; Lists Research & Development Data; Negotiable Documents; Contracts Sales; Forecasts; Meeting Notes; Accounting Records; Payroll Records; Personnel Records; Bids and Quotations; Budget Data; Confidential Letters, Memos; Prospect Lists; Financial Reports; Business Plans; Medical Information; Micro Fiche; Expense Reports; Labor Estimates; Engineering Drawings; Production Reports; Credit Cards; Inventory Reports; Cancelled Checks; Bank Statements; Security Holding Statements; Copy Machine Rejects/Excess; Legal Signatures; Computer Tape; And More.....

We would like to thank St. Louis Data Destruction for the helpful tips (above) when it comes to confidential destruction.
